The brand is putting a large focus on building a partnership with the UW Stout system, and working with the leaders of their School of Hospitality to utilize the hotel for educating students going into the field.

"The city has done very well for this community," said Bill Albright, owner of Capital Investment Partners. "I think what you stand in today has been the vision of the city, the council, and the mayor for the past several years, and I think it was needed in the community."

"The city of Menomonie is open for business. Said Mayor Randy Knaack. "That is something we need to tell people; we are ready to do projects like this. We welcome you (Cobblestone Hotels & partners), and look forward to other projects with you."
